Economic development is a key priority for all governments. It is the foundation for a range of social benefits, including health, social wellbeing, employment, community safety and many more.

A key role of government is to establish an enabling environment for businesses and communities to flourish; this includes appropriate institutional structures, legislative frameworks, governance arrangements and regulatory mechanisms. In the absence of these, social and economic programs will fail to generate sustainable outcomes.

Our Capability

Sustineo's consulting team has provided research, evaluation, performance assessment and strategic advice to domestic and international clients through the Asia-Pacific region. This includes in regulation, innovation, policy and programme development.

We have worked with multi-lateral organisations, government, private and non-government sectors. Our consultants have a deep understanding of the factors that contribute to successful economic outcomes. Our diverse knowledge and capability delivers insight, sound policy advice and practical solutions.

Sustineo specialises in the provision of research and technical advice including policy research, case studies, regulatory assessments and sectoral analysis. The experience and expertise of our consultants ensures our work is high quality and is tailored to the specific country and project context.

Our skill in analysis and reporting ensures the final products exemplify integrity and methodological rigour, and presented in clear English for both technical and non-technical audiences.

Feature Projects

Regulatory Reform: Case Studies on Promoting Regulatory Reform | Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC)

Sustineo investigated the role of regulatory reforms and practices in the promotion of innovation across three case studies. The outcome provided lessons on promoting innovation through regulatory design and policy in APEC Member Economies.

Multilateral Organisations' Engagement with the Private Sector | Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade (DFAT)

Sustineo provided a detailed assessment of Australia's multilateral development organisation partners engagement with private sector development. This established a detailed understanding of the current approach and recommended strategies to improve future engagement.
